Description of the course	The course is conceived as a way of introducing the students to the rich early medieval archaeological heritage of Croatia and neighbouring countries i. e. the territories of former early medieval Croatian state. The time span that will be covered is the period between the middle of the 6th century and the middle of the 12th century. The topics to be analysed include: basic typological and technological characteristics of late Antique material culture, material culture of the Great migration period, problems of ethnicity in the early middle ages (the Slavs, the Croats, autochthonous populations, the Franks etc.), grave finds, pre-Romanesque architecture etc. The lectures will be held at the Department of Archaeology. Students will also visit Archaeological Museum Zadar, the town of Nin and, if possible, several important medieval sites in vicinity of Zadar.
Learning outcomes of the course	Students will be able to recognize and describe basic characteristics of early medieval archaeological heritage of Croatia and neighbouring countries. Also, they will be able to compare the aforementioned material culture to that of other parts of Europe and explain its importance to the development of Croatian culture in general.
